NATIONAL CONVENTION.

5 FRIMAIRN, NOV. 25.

A deputation from the Section of the Champs Elyfess preferred an addrefs, fellcituding the Convention on the decree against the remnant of the Didator's feation fitting at the Jacobins, and against those individuals, who, like the old privileged onders, retained only the name of their predecessors, without one of their virtues; and exhorting the Repetatatives of the people to crush those venomous reptiles who were swoln into notice only by the innocent blood with which those venomous reptiles who were swoln into notice only by the innocent blood with which those venomous reptiles who were swoln into notice only by the innocent blood with which these values of the people. It has declared unexing similable war against all the strength of the intriguers, all the advocates of terror, all the depredators on the public fortune, and all the enemies of the people, whatever make they may assume they may affume. The reign of virtue and public which were it it is on thete base that the national representation will found the Republic which is to reinder the French happy. While Capet existed, the Jacobins saved the addression of the tyrunt. But, in over-tuning the throne, the Convention had four to annihilate cyranny. Since the 27th had become the resource of the fascions, of the sadous representation to the stream of the fascions of the species of the fascions had attempted to rival the national representations.

RICHARD—W I am directed by the Committee to propose the following decree—that the name of general Dusommies, commander in chief of the army of the Easten. Pyrenees, killed in the battle of the 17th of November, on the Black Mountain, shall be incribed on the Column rected in the Pantheon, to the memory of the defender of their country.

to the memory of the defender of their country.

"The Convention charges its Committee of Public Safety to make enries concerning the fafety of Duodmater."—This decree was adopted.

Dubots Crance observed, that Dugommier was chosen by his fellow citizens of Martinice to represent them in the National Convention, but that being considered as more useful at the head of the armies of the republic, he had been furt thirther in presence. He moved that this circumstance should be inscribed on the column.—Ordered.

A letter from Boyfer, an adjutant general in the army of the Eastern Pyrenees, stated, it that Gen. Dugommier, before the Revolution, possessing the convention of two Marac—"Allow me to mention a fact which honours the memory of the brave General we have loft, and reminds us of the honourable poverty in which the first Generals of the Roman Republic, lost an immense for Lungommier, by devoting himself to the cause of the Republic, lost an immense for tuns in the Colonies.

At Paris, in September 1793, when he was appointed Brigadier General, he lived in fusch poverty, that he was under the necessity of applying to the Convention for an advance of money, to enable him to join the army. I was then a member of the Committee of Marine, and Commerce, and Dugommier applied to me to second his application, by stating, that it proceeded from absolute necessity. Without the small advance then given him, he would not have been able to join the army; and to this circumstance, for trisling in appearance, are we indebted for the immortal victories that will rank Degonmier among the most celebrated Generals. —The convention ordered these facility to be inferred in the Bulletin.

Letourneur stated, that a letter from Brigadier General Dutertre, dated Nov. 9, announced that the fyshem of justice and humanity adopted in La Vendee, promised a speedy termination to the citi war. The Chouans were daily coming in, throwing themselves into the arms of the Republicans, and saying "Since you will pull down the scatsfolds, we will "ight no longer against our brothers."
